

The Egg of the Internet

What if a living organism nested on the Internet?

If an egg was laid, and the Net was responsible for this life ...

To fertilize our new digital space we tap the images and other points of recognition from our tangible environment: the kiss of life. We are orienting ourselves in places yet unformed, our map, a habitat which is real on both sides of the screen. Like two cubes which fit into one another; appearing inside and outside at the same time.
