

Digital Diary

NEXT SEX PROJECTS

all my thoughts and feelings, i used to write them down.
 as soon as i had a digital camera, i stopped writing and recorded my thoughts and feelings with photographs.
 my life has become a bunch of digital photos as opposed to a bunch of written thoughts.
 my first camera was a casio Q.V. 110 digital camera. this was one of the first consumer-level digital cameras on the market. i was 18 yrs. old. on my way to study law.
 within weeks i was addicted to taking photos.
 intimate, immediate, self-contained, cheap, fast ...
 i fell in love with my new art form.
 it seems natural that it became such a part of my intimate life ...
 technology was always getting better and better.
 my photography "skills" were improving.
 i wanted more and more from my cameras.
 eagerly anticipating the arrival of my new "toy" (i must have gone through 10 models).
